

Woodworking as a hobby has seen an increase in popularity over the years. As our lifestyles get more modern and urban, there's a certain peace and satisfaction that can be derived from working with your hands to create something of value. Because of that, thousands of people have started on woodworking.

One of the biggest challenges of woodworking is finding plans that are suitable for you. If the plans are simple, the projects may not interest you. If you do find awesome products that you want to create, the plans may be too complex for you. Over and above that, buying books with woodworking plans may not be enough because of the limited selection.
